RUSSIA AND GERMANY.

War Between the Two Powers Certain to Occur Sooner or Later. York Times: Yesterday a friend of mine was in conversation with the Duke of Cambridge, and his royal highness told him that war between Russia and Germany, sooner or later, was certain. Such words coming from such a source are important. The Duke of Cambridge has only within the last few days returned from Germany, where he has been witnessing the military maneuvers, and he has, of course, been in intimate association with the Emgeror, the princes, and all the generals of the German army. The anticipation of the British commander-inchief may prove mistaken, but the fact that it has been formed by him at all—and of this fact there is no doubt—is extremely significant. The royal duke is of opinion that in the event of such a collision as he expects, Germany is likely to be victoion that in the event of such a collision as he expects, Germany is likely to be victorious. This seems probable enough, considering that Germany has never since her conflict with France ceased for a moment to improve and perfect her wonderful military organization; but there are other great authorities who hold a different view—Lords Wolseley and Sunderland among them—and who believe that in Russia Germany would find more than Russia Germany would find more than her match. The immediate ground for the rather startling forecast which the Duke of Cambridge has just uttered may not be very apparent, beyond the fact that there has long been a growing hatred be-tween the German and the Russian peo-ple, especially on the part of the latter toward the former, because Russia is overrun with Germans who monopolize the best posts in the country and who prove more enterprising and successful than the sluggish Muscovite. That there is any immediate prospect of a rupture between Russia and Germany is not probable—certainly it is not likely to take place in the lifetime of the Emperor William who is known to be recognilized. liam, who is known to be personally much attached to the Russian court. But the Emperor is now a very old man—eighty-six years of age—and it is hardly possible that his reign can be prolonged many years, while it is believed that the younger members of his house are bound by no strong ties of affection to the house of Romanoff. War between Russia and Austria, rivals in the assistance of interest in the string rivals in the assistance.

On referring the dictum of the Duke of Cambridge to a very competent authority words of their interview, but I can only tell the substance as Hendricks told me.

"He said Tilden asked him if he thought the convention would nominate him in spite of his refusal to be a candidate, and Hendricks told him he didn't think it would. 'But if I remain passive and discontinuous and discontinuous tell for the many intrigues which Russia is actively pursuing in the East, and one of which might at any moment seriously interfere with the plans of Germany.

A large measure of the qualities house of sentiment, he earns our warmest thanks. A large measure of the qualities named is happily found in the new play, Young Folks' Ways, a simple, truthful picture of American life—trustful at least in essentials, if not in detail. This play, with many faults, possesses a distinct value, and must be assigned in that respect to a higher rank than any recent production on the English stage."

Eupture Between Cardinal Hohenlol and the Vatican. Berlin, October 24.—The rupture between the Vatican and Cardinal Hohenlohe is complete. The cardinal will probably remain in Germany during the winter. The National Zeitung hears that the cardinal's sudden departure from Rome was owing to the failure of his request for the removal of the coadjutor of the Diocese of Albano, with whom he had every reason to be dissatisfied, and to pecuniary troubles. The same paper thinks the association of his departure with pecuniary troubles is a gross misrepresentation, as the cardinal has never been a spendthrift.

VERY VALUABLE INVENTIONS. Wheels, the Other a New Iron

Woodstock, Texn., October 23.—Your correspondent would like to call the attention of your readers to two new and valuable inventions that will supply long-felt wants. One is a simple device attachable to the wheels of any road vehicle for keeping the spindle or axle always oiled without trouble or soiling the fingers. The wheel or axle thus constantly lubri-cated will run fifty per cent, easier and last a lifetime, as there can be no wearing away. A locomotive that runs thousands of miles almost without wear would not run forty minutes if all its joints and journals were deprived of oil. tightening, as well as self-greasing; always tight regardless of hot or cold, dry or wet weather, and will last a generation, as nothing can get slack (which we have seen in use and examined) and give way, or get dry and wear out. It is a hollow me-tallic hub of steel, or malleable iron or brass which it can be tightened up, and, indeed, tightens itself; or any one taken out and replaced without interfering with the other spokes, or the tire, or any other part of the wheel, and without taking the wheel off. Thus all parts of the entire wheel expand and contract alike, and equally from all climatic variations. The construction combines lightness and beauty, with strength and durability. It is pronounced by indees to be the "coming" Killed by His Aunt. beauty, with strength and durability. It is pronounced by judges to be the "coming wheel," all covered by patent. We have personally examined both these inventions and feel satisfied of their success, their excellence and value, both to the inventor and to the world. Truly a very useful and important invention to all owners of buscies, carriages, and wagons, which of buggies, carriages and wagons, which must certainly bring a fortune to the in-ventor, who is now a poor man and one of the oldest and most highly esteemed citizens of our county for his integrity and citizens of our county for his integrity and truth, intelligence and genius. Mr. Sarven, formerly of Columbia, Tenn., now a millionaire of Ohio, made over a million on his little improvement of the wheel now in common use, and this new invention and improvement in wheels is so much greater and so superior to his that it ought to bring the inventor millions, for it is certainly the coming wheel of

BUOYANT BULLS.

The Sancere of the Short Interest on th New York Stock Market Continued.

General Advance in the Villards, No. withstanding the Northern Pacific Sults.

New York, October 24.-The stock ma New Yonk, October 24.—The stock market was again buoyant and strong, and the squeeze of shorts, begun last week, made further progress to-day. At the opening the market was buoyant, in fact, got beyond the control of the "buils" for a short time. The opening figures were ½ to 1½ per cent. above the close Tuesday night. Rock Island and Michigan Central led the Rock Island and Michigan Central led the upward movement. Among other stocks conspicuous far their strength were Union Pacific, which rose $\frac{1}{2}$, to 91\frac{1}{2}$; Michigan Central 1, to 89\frac{1}{2}$; Missouri Pacific $\frac{1}{2}$, to 85; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy 1\frac{1}{2}$, to 85; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy 1\frac{1}{2}$, to 85; Chicago, Burlington and Reading 1, to 52\frac{1}{2}$. About 11 o'clock the traders showed a disposition to take profits, and a decline of $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. took place, the latter in Michigan Central, which fell to 87\frac{1}{2}$. Instead of declines, as expected, all the Villard shares advanced upon the announcement in Wall street (the news had not yet found its way from the court-room)

It is stated that since the opening of the Oregon Trancontinental transfer books, 60,000 shares of that stock have been transferred and taken out of the street. The solicitation for proxies for the ratification of the Northern Pacific second mortgage loan were sent out to-day, and it is announced that $30,000,000 stock and proxies are already secured of the $31,000,000 required. As the day advanced the upooo required. As the day advanced the up-ward movement gained force and in the last hour intense excitement prevailed, owing to the efforts of some bears to cover. The Vanderbilt shares, Oregon Transcon-tinental, Western Union, Lackawanna, Union Pacific and Northern Pacific continued the features of the markets. It continued the features of the markets. It was reported that a prominent bear alone covered 20,000 shares of Lackawanna. Manitoba advanced and the principal shorts were afforded no opportunity to cover. The short interest in this stock is estimated at about 10,000 shares, part of which was recently put out as sellers' options. The rise was stimulated by a report that a syndicate of Boston capitalists had made a bid for a large block of stock. FALL & WINTER STOCK Corner Second and Jefferson Sts. TORPID BOWELS,
